Liberty Specialty Markets Latin America

The energy industry is constantly changing.

Wind and solar energy are one of the fastest growing renewable forms of energy, and commercial projects are on the rise – constructed to sell electricity to the grid for private and commercial usage.

Generation, transmission, and distribution are complex processes that encompass not only the latest in technology and efficiency, but also large sums of investments.

In an environment like this, it's important to understand what you're walking into. That's where we come in. At Liberty, we've built up years of experience in insuring energy complex projects around the world – and we know exactly what it takes to offer the right solution to cover the construction and operation of this ever-changing dynamic industry.
